there would soon be no market for nicket cigars if the ranks of smokers were not constantly recruited from boy cigarette garettes was 14,000,000 less in this country than the year before. This shows that recruits have been added to the ranks of ci gar smokers. Perhaps you don't know that New York has become the largest manuacturing center of the cigar industry in the world. For the seven months of this year ending July 30th there were 441,236 .-000 cigars made in New York City. These, at $6 per thousand, yielded a very handsome revenue to the Government.
"The eigar industry is controlled by forigners, and all have made money. Cigar-makers come principally from Germany; many are from Bohemia, and a few are from Belgium, Holland and Eugland. German cigarmakers are coming over now in large numbers, and are settling in New store. York at the rate of 2,000 a year. They all find employment at remunerative wages. Sumatra, into this market has lately caused a great flutter in the trade. This tobacco is grown under the direction of a wealthy Dutch syndicate at Amsterdam, which employs coolies to raise tobacco on their possessions in the East Indies. The tobacco has only been in this market two years, yet it is gaining favor so rapidly that the importations of it have increased at the rate of one hundred per cent. a year. In 1874 the total tobacco product of the land of Sumatra was only 96,463 pounds. Last month 147,224 pounds alone were brought to New York. The Sumatra leaf is cured so well, and is so glossy and handget it now, sir!" eagerly take to it. Its quality is very poor, but since four pounds of it will walk? cover 1,000 cigars, where twelve pounds of seed or domestie are ordinarily used, it is much cheaper to use Sumatra tobacco where appearance only is onsidered, notwithstanding its duty of 35 cents a pound and 10 per cent. ad valorem. Cigar manufacturers say that American rowers of tobacco have become very care less in the cultivation of their tobacco ops. It requires one year of curing before the crop is ready for the market, and the '80 and '81 crops have been found so poor that in self-defense the handsome Sumatrian stranger has been given the preference. Pere Didou's remarkable discourses or 'Science Without God" have been translated into English by Miss Rosa Corder, and the work will be published at once. It is said that Swinburne, in his new volume just published, strikes a new note in his "Songs to and About Children," which will be specially attractive to his early admirers.

Miss Mary Talcott, a niece of Governor Horatio Seymour, is at work on a "History of the Seymour Family," beginning with Richard Seymour, of Connecticut, who came from England in 1646. It is understood that the article on "Bach and Handel" in the British Quarterly Review was written by Fraulein Lina Ramann, whose "Life of Lizt," which has attracted considerable attention in Germany, is about to appear in an English translation.

REVOLUTIONS OF DRIVING WHEELS .-An account is given in English journals of the performance of a locomotive engine on the Great Northern Railroad, which recently carried the Duke of Elinburgh from Leeds to London, 1863 miles, in three hours, or at the rate of sixty-two miles per hour, without allowing fer one stop that was made at Grantham. This speed has frequently been equalled, and sometimes passed for short distances, says an exchange, but is remarkable as the average rate for such a long journey. The engine had driving wheels eight feet in diameter, or two feet larger than the driving wheels American engines, which have been dubbed "Jumbo" on account of their great size. To accomplish the trip in the time given, the driving wheel must have made 219 revolutions per minute, or more than 36,000 in three hours. A six-foot driver making the same number of revolutions per minute would travel only 141 miles in the same time, or, to put it in the other way, a six-foot driver, to accomplish the same distance in the same time, would have to revolve 288 times instead of 219 per minute. Centrifugal force will come in after a while to limit the speed of the biggest and most powerful locomotives.

---A SERPENT AMONG THE BOOKS.-A gen tleman ia India went into his library one day and took a book from the shelves. As he did so he felt a slight pain in his finger like the prick of a pin. He thought that a pin had been stuck by some careless per son in the cover of the book. But soon his finger began to swell, and then his arm, and then his whole body, and in a few days he died. It was not a pin among the books, but a small and deadly serpent. There are many serpents among the books nowadays. They nestle in the foliage of some of our most fascinating literature they coil around the flowers whose perfume intoxicates the senses. We read, we are charmed by the plot of the story, by the skill with which the characters are sculptured or grouped, by the gorgeousness o the word-painting-we hardly feel the pin-prick of the evil that is insinuated. But it stings and poisons. When the record is made up, on what a multitude will be inscribed: "Poisoned by serpents among the books."

"SMART"-A writer for an English society and fashion journal says that the NO HOLSE ON THIS COAST OFFERS 'smart" is taking the place of the words "tony" and "swell" with fashionable people who make use of racy idioms. She says: "The word is a revival. will find it very useful. It is applied to everything-a sermon, a concert, a dance, a dinner-party, a dress, a bouquet, a house, a wedding; and one gentleman was heard to talk of a 'smart' funeral the other day. The meaning varies slightly, according to circumstances. A smart sermon is likely more epigrammatic than eloquent. If a concert is called 'smart' you may be sure there was a very fashionable attendance, with which the merits of the music had very little to do." And so the forms of expression seem to have changed places, and the Yankee word 'smart," so ridiculed by foreigners in the past, has finally been adopted by them and in return Americans are appropriating the English word "clever."

DOES THE MISSISSIPPI RUN UP HILL? The erroneous notion that the Mississippi river is actually higher at its mouth than at its source has obtained a much more general belief among intelligent people than readers of Our Curiosity Shop on the parallel of Lake Itasca, the source of the Mississippi. But it does not follow that the surface of the Mississippi at its nouth is two miles higher than Lake Itasca. In the way of corpses, he did not see so much as a dead fly within its precincts. He describes it as a small circular depression in a gorge of the Dieng mountains, about seven square meters in size and forlorn of vegetation. It is approached by two footpaths, winding downwards from the hills by which it is surrounded. By one of these paths Dr. Kuntze entered the Death Valley, despite the entreaties of his guides and servants, one of whom repeatedly strove to failed to answer to his name when celled, and the Judge declared his deposit forfeited; Wm. ## The Question To-day.

TRUE MERIT MEETS WITH QUICK RECOGNITION, and probably no word of ours can make trade in the Shoe-room more steady or certain than it already is. We put these short paragraphs in the papers daily simply to point out and direct; but BOOTS AND SHOES, like all other goods in our Establishment, must sell on their own good traits. The question to-day is merely: What shall we say, in this short space, to have more people become acquainted with the upright character of OUR BOOTS AND SHOES, and of the economy in dealing with us? We are still selling out the LEWIS BROS. STOCK, AND AT LESS PRICES THAN CHARGED BY THAT FIRM.

DOES THE MISSISSIPPI RUN UP HILLS The erroneous notion that the Mississippi river is actually higher at its mouth than at its source has obtained a much more general belief among intelligent people than readers of Our Curiosity Shop suppose. This notion grows out of the fact that the earth is not a perfect globe, all the testimony, the fact of his having been miles greater than the average distance rom the center of the earth to its surface on the parallel of Lake Itasca, the source of the Mississippi. But it does not follow that the surface of the Mississippi at its mouth is two miles higher than Lake Itasca. Actual survey has demonstrated that it is ANOTHER ILLUSION DISPELLED. Another romantic tradition has been refuted by Dr. Otto Kuntze's discovery that the lethal capacities of Pakamaran, the renowned Javanese Death Valley, are as utterly fabulous as the Norwegian Kraaken or Richard of Gloucester's hump. It is no longer permitted to us to believe that the effects of the subtle poison given off by the "Deadly Upas Tree" have bestrewn the dismal vale with countless carcases of savage beasts, serpents and birds, or that a certain death awaits any foolhardy traveler attempting to cross it : for the eminent German explorer has paid Pakamaran an exhaustive visit, and reports it to be as healthy as any other part of the island. In the way of corpses, he did not see so much as a dead fly within its precincts. He describes it as a small circular depression in a gorge of the Dieng mountains, about seven square meters in size and forlorn of vegetation. It is approached by two footpaths, winding downwards from the hills by which it is surrounded. By one of these paths Dr. Kuntze entered the Death Valley, despite the entreaties of his guides and servants, one of whom repeatedly strove to hold him back by force, and, having travfork, accompanied by Alfred Wilkinson, an oldersed Pakamaran in every direction, quitted it by the other path. The natives had THE COFFEE TRADE -Some idea of the assured him that he would find the valle rapid growth of the coffee trade of the choked up by skeletons, as even the swiftworld may be obtained from the fact that est birds flying above it would drop down stone dead, slain by its poisonous exhalations. In vain, however, did he look about for a single bone; nor could he detect the > > WILD DOGS.

Wild dogs are plentiful in Assam, less so in Burmah. All wild dogs are said to belong to one species only; but I should say the Burmese wild dogs differ from the Assam, and both from the beautiful animal found near or at the foot of the Western Ghauts, in India. Colonel McMaster had a Burmese wild bitch, Evangeline, a nasty, mangy creature, and as offensive as a pole cat. He gave it to the People's Park, Madras. She was much smaller and of different type altogether to the wild dogs I have seen elsewhere. The Karens also as sert the existence of a black and white wild with ammonia or loaded with dog found in their hills, the young of which they capture when mere pups and train to the chase. After an intinity of trouble Captain D'Oyly procured a pair about half alum or taltaric acid-all of grown; they were about the size of a small lley, black and white, tails very curly, carried over the back in almost a knot; very hairy, especially about the fore-quarters and chest; small, upright ears; head pointed like a fox's. They dug holes, and crawled into them backward, lying with just the tips of their noses and ferrety eyes visible. They were very savage, and, although very young, would not allow themselves to be handled. The bitch soon escaped. The dog, after that, in time became uieter, and D'Oyly, by feeding it himself, got it to be more sociable, and it became sufficiently tame to follow him about. Knowing the interest Sir A. Phayre took in natural history, D'Oyly took his dog down to Rangoon to show him to Sir Ar thur; but the very first day he was taken out in Rangoon he got separated or ran was this dallying, say the historians, that away from his master, and was never seen again. We both tried to get others, but did not succeed, and though I have tray. Sumers. There is no secret about eled about a good deal in the Karen hills, I the English General, Lord Surrey, who never saw a dog or bitch of the same breed again, -[The London Field. A Doubtful Compliment.

An Eastern Baking Powder Company has the effrontery to advertise its production as a "competitor" of the NEW ENGLAND BAKINGPOWDER—hoping, we presume, to impress consumers with the idea that it is an open question as to which is entitled to has been kept alive with regard to the Keely motor, which, it is alleged, is an actual thing, the invention of the man whose portrait is performances.

In the summer of 1875 people were led to believe that the mystery would at last be divulged. A gauge of enormous proportions was exhibited in Philadelphia, which, it was stated, was capable of testing any force from ten pounds to fifty-four thousand, and constructed for the purpose of testing the vaporic force of the Keely motor; but we do not learn that it was so employed to a degree satisfactory and definitive, and the secret concerning the motor itself is still unbroken. Possibly the faith of those trying to believe in the Keely motor has been strengthened by a report lately made to the Common Pleas Court of Philadelphia by William Bockel, an ergiceer of considerable I cal reputation. Mr. Bockel had been appointed to receive from Keely, as defendant in a case before said Court, "the knowledge and information by him in a certain agreement, dated June 9, 1882, agreed to be imparted relative to certain inventions designated in the bill of com-plaint." After communicating with Keely as directed by the Court, Mr. Bockel reported that Keely has discovered new force or motive power, requiring special machinery for its proper utilization, but is not yet ready to probably no word of ours can make trade in the Shoe-room more steady or certain than it already is. We put these short paragraphs in the papers daily simply to point out and direct; but BOOTS AND SHOES, like all other goods in our Establishment, must sell on their own good traits. The question to-day is merely: What shall we say, in this short space, to have more people become acquainted with the upright character of OUR BOOTS AND SHOES, and of the economy in dealing with us? We are still selling out the LEWIS BROS.' STOCK, AND AT LESS PRICES THAN CHARGED BY THAT FIRM.

The Question To-day. TRUE MERIT MEETS WITH QUICK RECOGNITION, and

People living one or five hundred miles from Sacramento can purchase goods through our COUNTRY ORDER DEPARTMENT at the same price as though standing in person at our counters. We do not-as many do-make one price for city customers and another for those living at a distance; but all are served alike, and our years of experience in this branch of the business has been sufficient to warrant us to say that all demands will be properly attended to, and that a single trial order cannot fail to establish our standing in this respect, and to insure a continuance of your patronage.
